

Episode 30: “Alpha Omega” -Written and Directed by JV Torres

[Opening News show music]

Tom: Welcome back to the lightning and thunder round of the week. I am joined by conservative philosopher Charles Thomas and liberal commentator Barbara Cerna. Thank you both for coming on the program. This week, King Asilas has said American Allied Forces are heading into Antarctica for a showdown with the Drax army. Let me begin with you, Barbara, what is your take on the Revolution campaign heading into Antarctica?

Barbara Cerna: Tom, it truly astounds me that so many Americans still will not even question this Antarctic campaign. It is absurd, incredibly risky and dangerous. America has virtually taken control of the whole world already. What more land and control does this king want?

Tom: Hold it. To be fair, I think everyone understands the revolution is a war against the Drax creatures and not about land grabs.

Barbara: [gradual sarcasm] Well, sure it is because that is essentially what the king says, right? Whatever the king says, we should all believe blindly. Is that how this Merry-Go-Round works? For all we know, King Asilas and the Drax are in cahoots together. I mean, this entire campaign could be a giant ploy to have a one world corporate government, which is what the elitists have always wanted anyway. We should be asking way more questions about the king's motives is all I am saying.

Tom: Charles, what is your response to what Barbara is saying? Should people be questioning the king's motives at this stage of the campaign?

Charles Thomas: Honestly, I am not certain what Barbara or others like her want to know. The king has demonstrated he is not after personal wealth or glory. He's shown the world this time and time again and they still think he wants wealth and possessions. The facts simply don't support that belief. This campaign is not about a land grab or creating a one world government. It is about fighting the enemy of humanity.

Barbara: [interrupting and sarcastic] Oh, those are just talking points, Charles. Everyone knows you are a mouthpiece for the king and his High Council. You know why they are called the “High Council?” Because they're smoking something wacky up there in that castle.

Tom: [coughing and interrupting] Now, let's keep this civil and professional. I believe Charles did not interrupt you, Barbara, so I ask you give him the same courtesy.

Charles: Really, Tom, it's fine. People see right through these projections Barbara and her liberal friends spew day after day. Just for clarification, I don't work for the king or the High Council. I report on the happenings of the kingdom and from time to time, and I give commentary of what's happening. I don't go around trying to brainwash people in an effort to turn them against the king for political points --especially with sworn enemies of His Majesty.

Barbara: Political points? Are you serious, Charles?

Charles: Perhaps you and your minions are in cahoots with the Drax and you are the ones trying to undermine the king for dark reasons.

Barbara: [phony surprise and flabbergasted] That's absurd! I am merely giving another perspective.

Charles: [agitated] Really? Strange how your perspectives are always against the king. Name me one good thing you have said in public about the king? Just one thing.

Tom: Ok, this is not how this program was designed to go.

Barbara: [increasing her volume] Maybe the king simply hasn't done anything good to talk about? Maybe we're just sick of his lies. [starts to fade out]

Charles: Well, we're all sick of yours as well, Barbara. And I feel sorry for you when Judgement Day comes and it is coming a lot sooner than you think... [fade out completes]

[high intensity music –sounds of troops and machines]

Lemuria: Russel, are the warriors ready for battle? It appears the humans are beckoning us outside.

Russel: Yesss [hisses], Your Highness. I say we wait and let them freeze to death up there.

Lemuria: I agree. It would be the easiest battle ever won. [laughs] Humans are so stupid. To think they actually believe they have a chance if we decide to fight them.

Russel: Your Highness, I felt something strange not long ago. [hesitantly] I'm not suggesting the humans would even have a chance in a war against Drax, but something told me they are being helped by something I am unaware of.

Lemuria: The Creator has sent someone to help Asilas. Beals was here and told me this already. I am aware of the entity. But it matters not, we wait and if they can draw us out, then we'll fight.

Russel: I understand, Your Highness. I will see to it the warriors are prepared and ready for battle.

Lemuria: Do not underestimate the entity the Creator has sent, Russel. This might all be a test for us as well. One should never attempt to read the mind of the Creator. Such things are unconscionable.

Russel: I wouldn't think of it. But we must be ready for anything. We are worthy and we all believe this. Bring on the humans! [hisses] [boom]

[transition music]

Narrator: After months of preparations, American forces lead by the Spartans headed into Antarctica and waited for orders from King Asilas to engage the Drax Army. The frigid temperatures began to affect the soldiers on the ice, but the absence of a Drax resistance conjured fear that the "War to end all Wars" was a trap. Tensions grew as the sentiment circulated that all the Drax needed to do was wait for the human armies to die of hypothermia. Asilas heard a voice he believed was of the divine Alpha Omega that spoke to him in a dream. He said:

Alpha Omega: In twenty-four hours lead your army to the center of Antarctica, create a circle of soldiers three miles in diameter and blow 21 ram horns. At the end of the 12th hour, the demons will come out from under the ice and man's army will destroy the demons in a war where many screams will go unheard. After your army defeats them, Asilas, you will return and bathe in the Jordan River where you will meet a man wearing a red and white robe. He will instruct you to enter an ancient city. Follow him and you will find me.

Narrator: Asilas did as the Alpha Omega instructed and after 12 hours of the ram horns trumpeting, the ice beneath everyone's feet cracked. Steam billowed in spots for miles in all directions and a gaping hole opened beneath their feet. Black, needle-shaped crafts shot up over Asilas's army and circled aimlessly. Lord Oreb's high-tech Snow Tanks began shooting many of the needle ships down when Drax warriors elevated from the giant hole in the ice. The Spartans engaged the Drax warriors, many of which towered fiercely over the Spartans, standing nearly 10 feet in height. The Spartans began to levitate the Drax, and shot them midair in order to fend off physical attacks. However, the Drax warriors were incredibly numerous and soon it became clear the human army was grossly outnumbered. When the Drax got close to the ground, they ripped the limbs off of human soldiers easily, even as they were being shot. Asilas's army used flammenwerfers to stave off the Drax warriors, whose numbers continued to stream out of the ice. The screams of terror and pain were so deafening, amid the battle, Asilas could no longer distinguish between the sounds of screams and machines ... everything blended into a low hum. The king gazed at the battle scene; fire burning on red ice, broken and torn bodies, and a continuous stream of Drax warriors—each more aggressive and horrifying than the previous line marching forward and ever closer. [boom]

[transition action music] [sounds of guns and battle scene and high, cold winds]

Oreb: Sir, MOABs are being launched on to the entrance of the Drax gate! Our troops are five-six flanks in! They're tearing us to pieces!

Asilas: After the MOABs are detonated, call in the Knight Spartans with the seventh wing!

Oreb: But sir, how many? We have limited number of Knight Spartans! We cannot afford to lose any of them!

Asilas: Call in 5 in the first wave! Push them in after the MOABs. You better hope they mastered using those Orion weapons!

Oreb: I'll relay the order to Lord Shelley, sir. Her Naval fleet off the eastern coast is reporting massive casualties, but they're also taking out those needle ships without much issue. The Orion canons are proving to be very effective.

Asilas: But we still haven't seen those airships from Australia!

Oreb: All we've seen are those needle ships! I have a bad feeling about this, sir! [pause] Maybe we should call on the Chinese air support to come in over the west flank!

Asilas: No! The Chinese are to be pushed further back! Communicate with President Wei and if the Chinese so much as moves an inch closer, tell him we'll consider that treachery and fire nukes at them!

We're not taking any chances with them! If we get pushed back to the breaking point, then we'll call them in. But only as a last resort. Right now, we're holding our position in spite of the casualties.

Oreb: As you command, Your Majesty! [loud beep] Sir, reports from Lord Shelley say a fleet of the Australian airships have been spotted. Sir, they are coming out of the waters off the coast. USOs, sir!

Asilas: Damn it! Tell Shelley fire everything they got at those Drax airships!

Oreb: [loud beep] Sir, the Orion canons are ineffective. Shelley is reporting heavy damages. The airships are in full attack mode on our Navy ships and nothing we're firing at them is having any effect! Sir, what are your orders? Shelley is reporting catastrophic damage on our flagship aircraft carrier!

Asilas: Call in Gideon and four of our top Knight Spartans. Initiate Operation Commandeer!

Oreb: But this would put Gabriel in serious danger!

Asilas: We're all in serious danger at the moment, Lord Oreb! Initiate Commandeer now!

Oreb: As you command, Your Majesty!

[transition music]

Narrator: One of the things that made King Asilas such an effective leader and powerful warrior was his ability to think of every scenario possible before going into battle. He knew his armies would face an enemy they couldn't possibly defeat with the limited weapons humans possessed. Most humans were incapable of powers many considered on the fringe of "magical." This was because of their willful separation from the spiritual realm. Only a very select few could reach the level of consciousness and awareness to possess the powers all humans innately have: the power of mind over matter and heightened consciousness. For Asilas, his Knight Spartans were the only ones capable of reaching such levels of consciousness. But beyond this, Gideon and all Knight Spartans were capable of telekinesis, mind reading, and hijacking other sentient beings --essentially possessing another entity's body. Knight Spartans could control the actions of animals for a short duration of time, so long as they had a brain. And when Asilas sent the Knight Spartans to aid Lord Shelley against the Drax airships, he asked them to accomplish something they had little success with before. As the alien aircrafts swooped down in their attacks of the Navy warships, Gideon and others used their minds to hijack the minds of the Drax pilots. Gideon and the others were able to commandeer their actions and commanded them to attack the other ships. Within minutes, the Drax airships were attacking each other indiscriminately. Then, Gideon and the others commanded the airships to attack their own Drax warriors on the front of the battle.

[transition music]

Lemuria: Russel, what is happening? The humans should be retreating now and being shot in the back as they run away. But we are the ones losing the battle!

Russel: Your Highness, I am not completely sure what is happening. But it seems our own airships are under the control of King Asilas. We're being fired on by our own ships!

Lemuria: That is impossible! Humans don't have possession capabilities! How did this happen!?

Russel: I am not completely sure, but—

Lemuria: You are not completely sure of anything! Fine! If the humans want to fight with mind control, so can we! Russel, send our high priests to the surface and make the humans turn on each other!

Russel: As you command, Your Highness. [hisses]

[transition --intense music]

Asilas: Lord Oreb, get our satellites to zoom in on the entrance of the Drax gate now!

Oreb: As you command, Your Majesty! But what are we looking for!?

Asilas: Tell Command to watch for Drax dressed in red robes!

Oreb: Red robes! What does this signify, sir??

Asilas: They're high priests of the Drax Order. They'll be surfacing to commandeer our soldiers to turn against us!

Oreb: And what should we do when they surface?!

Asilas: Drop another round of MOABs!

Oreb: I'll relay this Command to ready the B-52s to unload the MOABs, sir!

Asilas: As soon as they confirm a visual, drop the MOABs! [boom]

[transition music with Hindu chants in the background --SONG-- (end of the world)]

[news music with Tom Novak in the background -sound of men speaking in Arabic]

Newsreader: We have breaking news, King Asilas released a statement today saying America's campaign in Antarctica was a complete success. News of America's victory over the Drax hit the streets worldwide at approximately 3AM eastern standard time. By daybreak at our studios here in New Eden, celebrations were happening all over the world. In Paris, in Cairo, in Barcelona, Johannesburg, Berlin and Moscow, people crowded in the streets honking car horns, clanking pots and pans, music and dancing for miles around major cities everywhere. We go live to our own Phil McAbee who is in Time Square to get people's reaction here in the America as King Asilas has evidently lead our world army to the greatest victory in all the world's history.... [fade out]

[sound of river water and someone in dipping their head in it -religious prayer(in aramaic)]

Lord Shelley: [sounds of water dripping and drying off] Your Majesty, the whole world is celebrating our victory in Antarctica. [pause] But something tells me this whole thing is far from over.

Asilas: It's way far from over, Lord Shelley. [pause] I'm glad you came with me to the Jordan River and be baptized. You were in no way obligated.

Shelley: I know, sir. I wanted to be here with you. [pause] Look, I know things are strange and it doesn't make any sense. I feel so stupid sometimes because I don't want to be that woman. You know, the one in the shadows like a mistress. I hope you understand what I mean.

Asilas: You are not anyone's mistress, Lord Shelley. I love and respect you more than you can possibly know. But I am a devoted husband. I can never and will never be unfaithful to my wife.

Shelley: Sir, permission to speak frankly.

Asilas: Granted.

Shelley: Don't you think emotional cheating is the same as physical cheating?

Asilas: Indeed, I believe for many it is. And before you ask, I believe it is also. Which is why I ask for forgiveness every single day. Forgiveness from my God, my Creator, and forgiveness from you. Because I desire you so much. Everything tingles inside me when I am near you or hear your name or your voice. Just looking at you right now with your hair all wet like it is. You are so beautiful to me.

Shelley: Sir, I don't know what to say. [sounds of bodies smacking close and kissing] Oh...well, I guess we'll just be flawed humans.

Asilas: The war we fought against the Drax was nothing compared to the battle we are about to face, Lord Shelley.

Shelley: What do you mean?

[SONG -- "I Can't Live This Way" by Marco Vega]

Assistant: [interrupting -fake coughing] Your Majesty, there is a young man here to see you. He says the Alpha Omega sent him and you instructed me to tell you when this person arrives.

Asilas: If he is wearing a red and white robe, bring him to me. [sounds of footsteps and a sharp whistle]

Stranger: [sounds of footsteps on gravel] Your Majesty, I come to give you some instructions from the Alpha Omega.

Asilas: What are they?

Stranger: You are to follow me into the ancient city of Petra. And you are to do so wearing nothing on your feet. When you arrive, you will find three shiny coins inside a bowl of water near the entrance of a façade. Read the words on the coins. They will tell you where to find the Alpha Omega. Also, no one is to follow behind us.

[transition music]

[sounds of bare feet on sandy road and coins in a metal bowl]

Alpha Omega: Come closer, Asilas. [pause -sounds of steps in dry sand/dirt] The time has come for the world to change.

Asilas: [sounds of kissing feet and whimpering] Nothing I have done in this world makes me worthy to be in your presence. I am not worthy, my Lord, Yeshua. [weeps loudly]

Alpha Omega: Stand, Asilas. You have lead your people from the darkness and showed them the truth. But I see their hearts and they still do not believe. My father, the one who sent me knows all of our hearts. And he knows your heart through and through, Asilas. You are a true believer and are forgiven. You will now lead your armies to the land of the prophecies. Do you know of the place I speak of? [pause]

Asilas: [humbly] I do know of this, my Lord.

Alpha Omega: In my hand I hold the scrolls with four of the seven seals of God's document, which will begin the changing of this world. And now, in your presence Asilas, I break the first seal. [sound of the breaking of a seal. You will ride off on this white horse, Asilas. Here, take this bow and these arrows with you. As you leave Petra, there will be several assassins waiting for you. But none of their bullets will touch you. With this bow, you will be rid of them and you will go out into the world in conquest.

Asilas: [confused] Yeshua, it was never my intent to conquer the world. Please...

Alpha Omega: It is written in the prophecies, Asilas. It is what must happen for the world to change. My father has willed this to be so. And with all the love for the father in your heart, go out into this world and conquer it as it is written in the prophecy.

Asilas: I will do as my Lord commands. [sounds of a horse galloping and swooshes of a bow and arrow and men shouting in pain for being shot with an arrow]

[news music fading in to creepy music and sounds of war]

Newsreader: We have breaking news, America. The world's celebration of the end of the Great war, King Asilas's Revolution has come to an abrupt end and King Asilas has declared war on his middle eastern and Chinese allies. We are receiving word from the office of King Asilas that the New Kingdom of America is now at war with the middle eastern alliance under King Hussein and China for, and I quote, "conquest of the world." There has been no official word from President Wei or King Hussein, but military activities in the middle east has ramped up. Reports from all over the world are coming in and China's military is said to be on the march towards the middle east. We have unconfirmed reports that King Asilas and members of the High Council are in Israel in the town of Megiddo, near the southern tip of the Sea of Galilee. Hold it. [sound of paper shuffling] We're just getting word that King Asilas has called all of the American Alliance military to the middle east for a ground assault. Ladies and Gentlemen, it is unclear just exactly what is happening, but reports from around the world are calling this the beginning of Armageddon, as it is strangely coincidental that King Asilas and the American Alliance, the Middle Eastern Alliance and the Chinese military are all meeting for a head to head battle of conquest at the one location long believed the place where Armageddon would take place. [sounds of noise and paper shuffling and people chatting nervously in the background] I know, we are live on the air! Ladies and gentlemen, we are being told to stand by. There is something big happening right now. [sounds of people mumbling near the news anchor] Stay tuned while we try to [static] we're trying to go to a live feed now [more static] wait....stand by... [off air sound beep]
